	Description: Policy that regulates the operation of the Ethics Line and the management of inquiries and complaints

ACINTRODUCTION

This Policy for the management of inquiries and complaints received in the Ethics Line (hereinafter, the “Policy”) is intended to implement the operation of the Ethics Line of Cobega, S.A. and those subsidiaries and investee companies over which the company has effective control and which adhere to the Compliance Model (hereinafter “Cobega Group”).

It establishes the procedure for managing inquiries and complaints, the investigation of complaints and the penalty process, where appropriate, for a criminal offence, serious or very serious administrative offence, breaches of European Union law, as well as any action contrary to the Code of Ethics and other internal regulations, notwithstanding the fact that the Cobega Group itself detects and investigates all actions that may be contrary to the law, the Code of Ethics or internal regulations, guaranteeing the application of a “zero tolerance” criterion in respect to any type of breach regardless of the matter.

It contains a description of the key elements, both human, organisational and documentary, that the Cobega Group applies to investigate and understand the scope of the events reported and manage any inquiries relating to the Compliance Model.

The Procedure for managing inquiries and complaints will be applied by the Compliance Area, led by the Compliance Officer, which on becoming aware of a possible breach, must initiate the corresponding investigation, for which they will have the support of the entire organisation. The real and effective application of this procedure will be ensured at all levels of the Cobega Group, and all those involved must comply with it.

The Cobega Group detects and investigates all actions that may be contrary to the law, the Code of Ethics or internal regulations, guaranteeing the application of a “zero tolerance” criterion in respect to any type of breach.

04 GENERAL MATTERS OF THE ETHICS LINE

0401 The Cobega Group has an Ethics Line that receives two types of communications:

- Inquiries: on the Group's Compliance Model and/or its internal regulations.
- Complaints: on possible breaches of law, the Code of Ethics or the regulations that develop it.

0402 The individuals that can make use of the Ethics Line are the following:

- Cobega Group employees.
- Third parties external to the Cobega Group.

0403 The Cobega Group will implement channels that allow communication by verbal and written means. Written communication may include postal mail or any electronic means enabled for this purpose and verbal communication via telephone or voice messaging systems. Likewise, a face-to-face meeting with the Compliance Officer may also be requested within a maximum period of seven (7) days.

- Link on the Cobega website: <https://www.cobega.com/canal-denuncia>

0405 Both inquiries and complaints may be sent to the immediate superior, the Compliance Officer or any of the members of the Compliance Area. Likewise, complaints may be communicated to any of the members of the Human Resources department. In any case, if they are not communicated through the enabled channels, they must be registered by the recipient or, where appropriate, the Compliance Officer themselves.

0406 In the event that Cobega Group employees receive information about a complaint made through the Ethics Line or any other means, they must maintain the maximum confidentiality and avoid, among other things, revealing any information that could allow the identification of the complainant, the respondent or third parties, and they must immediately send it to the Compliance Area through the aforementioned channels.

0407 Inquiries will always include a name, in order to facilitate a response to the reporting party.

0408 Complaints will preferably include a name identifying the complainant in order to expedite an adequate and efficient investigation of the reported facts. Complaints that have been made anonymously or those that have provided the external provider in charge of managing the Ethics Line with personal data may also be made and will be processed, but with the express mention of not communicating them to the Cobega Group.

0409 Communications will include the following content, without prejudice to the fact that certain sections are voluntary:

- Inquiries:
 1. Data of the person making the communication (mandatory)
 2. Company to which the inquiry refers (mandatory)
 3. Description of the inquiry (mandatory)
 4. Evidence (voluntary)
- Complaints:

06 GUARANTEES OF THE ETHICS LINE AND OF THE INVESTIGATION PROCESS

0601 All inquiries and complaints received through the Ethics Line will be governed by the following guarantees:

- i. Security measures: the Ethics Line will have the appropriate technical and organisational security measures to avoid risk of disclosure, unavailability and loss or destruction of information, that is: the confidentiality, availability and integrity of the inquiries and complaints received will be guaranteed.
- ii. Confidentiality: the confidentiality of the identity of the complainant, respondent and any third party mentioned in the communication, as well as the facts mentioned, will be guaranteed, with only authorised staff having access to the communication.
- iii. Privacy: the processing of personal data will be carried out in accordance with current legislation on data protection.
- iv. Diligent and reasoned response: inquiries and complaints will be answered respecting the established deadlines and will always be sufficiently reasoned and provide a response to the different questions raised.

0602 The complainants will also have the following rights:

1. Confidentiality: the complainant has the right not to have their identity revealed without their express consent (regardless of whether or not they provide their data, and their identity is revealed at a later stage) to any person who is not part of the Compliance Area and other authorised staff, except when it constitutes a necessary and proportionate obligation, imposed by current legislation or by an investigation within the framework of a judicial process, in which case they will be informed that their identity will be revealed, unless said information could compromise the investigation or judicial process.
2. Anonymity: the complainant may carry out the communication using their personal data or anonymously, not revealing their identity.
3. Absence of reprisals: the complainant and people related to the complainant will never be subject to any type of reprisals as a result of having filed a complaint in good faith, understood as: a) having reasonable grounds to believe that the information referred to was true at the time of communication, even when conclusive evidence is not provided and; b) when the communication is made in accordance with the provisions of this policy. The complainant may only be penalised in the event that the complaint was made in bad faith and there is reasonable proof that the complaint and the information provided was not true. The Compliance Area, together with the corresponding departments, will establish the appropriate follow-up actions to ensure compliance with this guarantee.

Excluded from any form of protection are complaints that:

- a. Are not admitted for any of the following reasons:
 - i. The reported facts lack all credibility.
 - ii. The reported facts do not constitute any breach.
 - iii. It is manifestly unfounded or there is evidence that the information in the complaint has been obtained through the commission of a crime, in which case the corresponding investigation into these latest facts shall be opened.
 - iv. It does not contain new and significant information about a breach in relation to a prior complaint for which the investigation has been completed, unless there are new factual or legal circumstances that justify a different follow-up.
- b. Deal with interpersonal conflicts or that affect only the complainant and the respondent.
- c. Whose facts are either public or are mere rumours.
- d. Whose facts are not breaches of the law or internal compliance regulations.

	Description: Policy that regulates the operation of the Ethics Line and the management of inquiries and complaints

4. Information: the complainant will receive an acknowledgement of receipt within a maximum period of seven (7) days from the moment the complaint is received in the Ethics Line, unless this may jeopardize the confidentiality of the communication. They will also be informed when the investigation has been completed and any action planned or taken.

0603 The respondents will also have the following rights:

1. Confidentiality: the respondent has the right not to have their identity revealed without their express consent, to any person who is not part of the Compliance Area and other authorised staff, except when it constitutes a necessary and proportionate obligation, imposed by current legislation or by an investigation within the framework of a judicial process.
2. Presumption of innocence: the respondent has the right to the presumption of innocence, for which reason they cannot be sanctioned or penalised until the investigation is completed. However, in the event that during the investigation it is detected that the respondent continues with the infractions, precautionary measures may be adopted, all in accordance and with the limitations provided in the regulations in force at all times.
3. Right to testify and present evidence and receive support: the respondent has the right to testify in the investigation procedure or to avail themselves of their right not to testify against themselves nor plead guilty. They will also have the right to use the evidence that they consider relevant for their defence (witnesses, documents, etc.). In any case, in all investigations the respondent must be given the opportunity to declare and provide evidence before the end of the investigation. Likewise, pursuant to current legislation, they may testify while accompanied by an employee representative or lawyer, if so requested in advance and provided that said representative is not involved in the facts under investigation. This circumstance will be recorded in the minutes of the statement.
4. Information: the respondent has the right to know of the existence of a complaint against them and has the right to know the results of the investigation and the corrective measures that, if relevant, are applied, except for any information that the current legislation expressly prohibits from transferring, such as the identity of the complainant. They will be informed of the existence of a complaint as soon as possible, provided that this does not compromise the investigation. If the aforementioned situation occurs, the respondent will be informed of the complaint prior to their summons to provide a statement. In the event that the complaint is not accurate or truthful or does not constitute an illegal act, the respondent has the right to have this fact recorded. In the above case, if the investigation into the respondent had been notorious, the Compliance Officer, upon request of the respondent, will make an internal communication to all staff members of the department of the respondent and any other departments deemed appropriate, depending on the case, expressing the completion of the investigation and the conclusion that the facts were not accurate or truthful or that it was not behaviour constituting any illegal act.
5. Right to a fair process: the respondent has the right to a process with all the guarantees, respecting the legal provisions and internal regulations applicable to the process that will include, among others, and in addition to those described above, respect for the established deadlines (without undue delay), that the people who make the decisions are objective and impartial (no conflict of interest), and adopt in all cases measures proportionate to the seriousness of the events occurred (proportionality of the sanction or penalty).

0604 The Ethics Line must respect current regulations regarding personal data protection and, especially, the provisions of the General Data Protection Regulation EU 2016/679 of the European Parliament and of the Council, of 27 April 2016 (hereinafter, "GDPR"), Organic Law 3/2018, of 5 December, on the Protection of Personal Data and Guarantee of Digital Rights (hereinafter, the "LOPDGDD") and Title VI and other provisions on data protection included in Law 2/2023, of 20 February, regulating the protection of persons reporting regulatory and anti-corruption breaches (hereinafter, "Complainant Protection Law"), for which the following issues stand out:

 - v. Personal data of no apparent relevance will not be collected to process a complaint, and if such data is collected by accident, it will be deleted without undue delay.
 - vi. The complainant and the respondent, as well as third parties related to the events, will be informed of the processing of personal data within a reasonable period of time, in any case, within a month from receipt, unless this compromises the investigation of the complaint, in which case they will be informed later but always prior to completing the investigation.
 - vii. Data subjects may exercise the data protection rights of access, rectification, erasure, objection, restriction or portability. Nevertheless, if the respondent exercises their right of objection, it will be presumed that, unless proven otherwise, there are compelling legitimate reasons that legitimize the processing of their personal data.

Conflicts of interest

In the event that the complaint is made against any of the members of the Compliance Area, the Compliance Officer themselves or one of the Investigation Managers, or a possible conflict of interest is detected during the investigation, this person will be excluded or will refrain from participation in the investigation.

Communication to the respondents under investigation:

If, during the course of the investigation, it is determined that the facts may be true, and in any case respecting the presumption of innocence, the Investigation Manager will contact the respondents under investigation and inform them of the facts attributed to them. They will also be informed of the forthcoming interview with the Investigation Manager, without prejudice to availing themselves of their right not to testify, and to present the documentation they deem appropriate.

The Workers' Statute sets the period of limitations applicable to actions at 10 days for minor offences, 20 for serious offences, 60 for very serious offences, from the date on which the company became aware of the event and, in any case, 6 months after it was committed.

In the event that, following the investigation, the perpetrators of the breach have not been identified, the investigation will also continue in accordance with the following sections, in relation to the measures to be applied to resolve the breach detected and implement the appropriate actions to prevent it from occurring again.

Final report:

The entire process will be documented in a report prepared by the Investigation Manager or the Compliance Officer, if applicable. Both the report and the evidence will be made available to the CACR, and to the Board of Directors.

If necessary, definitive measures will be implemented for the case in question, which will be monitored by the Compliance Officer.
